www.tbffc.org

Next Meeting: Wednesday, March 3, 2010, 6:00 p.m.

Location: Compton Park Recreation Center, Tampa Palms (See below for Directions)

Invited Speaker

Allen Wyatt

Allen Wyatt from Andy Thornal Company, Winterhaven, will present our March program. His power point presentation will discuss and demystify the subject of how to select the proper fly line. Casting problems most frequently start with tackle that is not properly balanced for the task; the fly line is the biggest offender. Bruce Richards, who has designed fly lines for Scientific Anglers for 20 years, in his book "Modern Fly Lines," states that SA company alone makes over 1500 different lines. After Allen's presentation you will be better prepared to select the proper line for your fly fishing needs, allowing you to get the most out of your rod and to cast with ease.

Featured Fly Tyer

Logan Valeri

Logan Valeri, a resident of Brandon, has been fly tying for almost a year now. He learned all of his techniques on his own and he specializes in trout flies out west. He enjoys fly fishing in Arkansas with his dad, Rick Valeri, and world renowned guide, Chuck Farneth. Although busy with schoolwork at Jesuit High School, Logan spends every other moment he has tying flies. He will be tying some great hopper patterns for trout as well as panfish and bass this month. You have probably seen him watching others tie during the meetings. He has a sponge for a brain and learns all the techniques the members have to offer. We hope you can learn a thing or two from him this month as he ties Dave's Hopper and Henry's Fork Hopper

Downs; then Bruce B. Downs east/north to Tampa Palms Blvd. Rt. on Tampa Palms, then left on Compton Drive and right at Compton Park

MARCH 2010 PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As I write this, the waters around Tampa Bay have warmed to a still chilly 60 degrees, the fish kills seem to have abated, the remaining manatees are surviving, and one of the coldest winters on record is on its way out.

We can expect flats fishing to improve rapidly as the waters warm. During previous cold periods, the fishing has often been excellent late in the afternoon when the shallow waters have been warmed by the sun. Therefore, it is time to unlimber the long rods, catch some hungry species, and report them to Bob Gaulin for the next newsletter.

Be sure to thank our February speakers, Bryon Chamberlin, Pat Damico, and Frank Rhodes for an entertaining and informative talk on fishing in Mexico. Double thanks to Bryon and Pat for their fly tying. Recipes for their flies can be found on page 8 below.

Lloyd Bull has made a special donation to the club to be used to promote more active fly tying by our members. We would like club member suggestions on how best to fulfill Lloyd's dream of having many more members participate in this important and satisfying activity.

We want to also thank Steve Parker for another fine casting clinic conducted on Saturday February 20, and to Walt Durkin for supplying the lunch.

Remember to sign up for our banquet to be held on the 25th of this month at the famous Columbia Restaurant in Ybor City. See page 6.

DINNER AND A SHOW FOR TBFFC

Some great new fly fishing movies will be shown at the Tampa Pitcher Show theatre on March 8th at 630pm. Tickets are available from the Salt Water Fisherman fly shop on Hillsborough Ave at Memorial Blvd for $12 before the event. Tickets at the door, if available will be $15.

I looked into a place to meet for dinner before the movie and I'd recommend the Tilted Kilt Pub at 14457 N. Dale Mabry. The Tilted Kilt is like a Scottish Hooters! The restaurant is 1/8th mile south of Ehrlich Rd. on the east side of the street. It is also directly across the street from the Pitcher Show so it will be easy to make the movie on time if we meet at 5pm or so. The Pitcher Show theatre sells sandwiches, wings, snacks, beer, etc. if people just want to eat there.

TIPS FOR TBFFC – No. 21

Casting Tip for TBFFC: 4

An efficient loop can only be formed then the fly rod tip travels in a Straight Line Path, our next essential. The fly line always follows the direction the rod tip is traveling when the rod stops. Besides a straight line path, the rod tip can travel in a convex direction, one higher in the middle, causing a large loop, or in a concave direction, where the tip is lower in the middle, forming a tailing loop when the line crosses itself. If you want to make a curve cast, directing the rod tip to the right or left at the stop will cause the end of the fly line to curve in the same direction, very useful for casting around obstructions. Tracking the rod tip in a straight line will direct the energy of the cast properly allowing the line to unroll efficiently. When practicing outside, use the house roof line as a guide for vertical rod tip positions or the straight edge of a lawn or driveway as a guide when casting more horizontally. As you carry more line, the rod loads or bends more but still tracks in a straight line path. One of Lefty's tips is to make your casts so that your fly is directed at the rod tip.

Van Camp/Green Seafood Pasta (Mud Lake Ditalini al Mare)

The pilot batch for this recipe was prepared at Backcountry Fly Fishing Association's 2002 Shad Outing on the St. John's River. It is named for Scott Green, the host of the camping weekend on Mud Lake.

Ingredients:

- Olive oil
- Vegetables: Celery, bell pepper, and Onion – chopped, Fresh parsley and garlic – finely chopped, and Diced canned tomatoes – with parsley, basil and oregano added
- Seafood: Bay Scallops and a Large can of Tuna plus Assorted seafood of your choosing – fresh, frozen or canned-- Crab, mussels, clams, shrimp, lobster, octopus, Imitation crab or lobster
- White wine
- Tomato paste
- Salt, pepper and hot pepper to taste

There are no amounts listed for the various ingredients. Just be generous and develop your own version of this dish.

Preparation:

- Sauté celery and green pepper in olive oil.
- Add chopped onions and cook until translucent.
- Add fresh parsley and garlic – Do not be afraid to use lots of both.
- Add bay scallops and tuna – then salt, pepper and hot pepper.
- Add one or more cans of diced tomatoes.
- Add additional seafood of your choice. Note: Add shrimp 3 to 5 minutes before serving to prevent overcooking.
- Pour in a generous slug of white wine.
- Add one or two tablespoons of tomato paste.

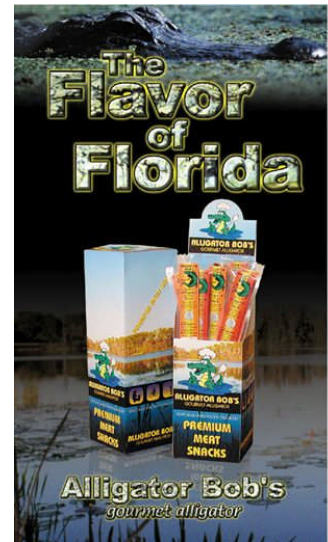

Simmer to allow flavors to develop. Add salt and pepper to taste while simmering. Add hot pepper to taste. The dish should have zip without being overbearing.

I like to simmer the dish for 25 minutes and then start heating water for the pasta and continue to simmer while pasta cooks – Total simmering time will be 45 to 60 minutes and most of the vegetables will dissolve into pure flavor in the broth.

Serve over Ditalini or other small cut pasta.

Leftover broth and seafood, minus the pasta, keeps well in the freezer.

Member Photos for March 2010

The Shad Outing was rugged, but satisfying to TBFFC attendees. A few caught fish (top left and right), some fought off a bit of queasiness on the rough water (center), meetings were held in the cold and dark on the subject "What are we doing here?" (Bottom left ), but almost everybody enjoyed a warm tent and a well prepared hot meal. All-in-all, an unforgettable trip!

OPENING DAY!!

Just last week I read of another trout fisherman's way of getting ready for the upcoming trout season. Catalogs had been dutifully pored over with pages turned down to mark new fly selections and leader materials. This was the time to decide on new light weight boots or choose to get one more season out of the old ones. Absorbing the descriptions of page upon page of the newest two to five weight space age fiber reinforced fly rods followed and conjured up in the angler's mind, visions of days yet to be spent in knee deep riffles, surrounded by only the sounds and sights and smells of his beloved trout stream. A lengthy period of weighing the merits of one rod against another and reaching a decision as to whether a half dozen of each of the selected size 16 dries was enough, would then trigger an order. OK, we're all set for another trout season.

Now, allow me to wind the clock backward, let's say 50 or 55 years for the benefit of dedicated fly fishermen too young to have experienced much of what follows. The end of deer season, the celebration of Christmas and a week later, the hoopla surrounding the end of yet another year signaled the true beginning of trout season in our home. To those who have read some of my earlier works, "The Birth of a Trout Fisherman", and "The Birth of a Fly Fisherman", it's old news that I did not become a fly fisherman till well after mid life when a heart attack took me out of the work force and started my fly tying and fly fishing life. But, before that, I'd owned flyrods, usually fishing for my small stream brook trout with worms and tiny spinners. Casting was out of the question, as the stream- sheltering canopy of alders and hemlocks allowed nothing more than short little flips to root-laced under cut banks that these stream bred brookies seemed to love. The rod of choice was an inexpensive, nine foot, three section split bamboo medium action fly rod purchased years earlier when I'd first become a trout fisher. On its butt end was mounted a Pflueger Progress single action reel which did nothing more than store the Ashaway level six weight fly line. It was a very basic outfit and one guaranteed to give lots of years of service while needing minimal care. But while the reel and line needed little off season care the rod, subject to all kinds of incidental dings and finish- marring scratches during the season, was yet another matter. Added to this was the fact that these split bamboo rods had a habit of taking a 'set' over the course of many trips and to avoid fishing with a badly bent rod, some corrective measures had to be taken. Each of the three, six sided sections of the rod had to be stripped of their guides and multi coats of varnish, taking care to preserve the flat sides of each rod section. Then came the time consuming but never tedious task of scraping (with a piece of broken window glass), each rod part 'till the original cane lay bared and ready for rewinding (on the opposite side of the piece) the line guides. Navy blue or purple were the colors on most of my wraps. When deemed ready for re-varnishing, the rod was reassembled to verify that the 'set' had been removed by the reversal of the guides. Each person had their own method for applying varnish smoothly, but my own preference was to use the tip of one finger, dipped not too deeply into the varnish can. The sensitive fingertip could detect the tiniest rough spot on the cane as the finish was applied, and when each section was completed, it was hung by the line guide to dry. It often took eight to ten hours in a dust free room for the first coat to dry completely, and this procedure had to be repeated three or four times till the rod glistened as if it were new. When thoroughly satisfied that we'd done all humanly possible to return the rod to factory newness, it would be placed in its cotton sack, not to handled till maybe the week before the actual beginning of the season. This, then, concluded the most arduous part of the preparations.

Our attention now turned to the terminal end of the tackle. Leaders and hooks, tiny Colorado spinners and a couple of wooden barrels of lead split shot completed this task. But wait!! What's this about a barrel full of split shot? Here we go with another history lesson.

We're stepping back in history to a time before plastic containers of any kind. See through cellophane wrappers were not durable enough to handle the rigors of constant openings and closings, so the least expensive of alternate packaging came into play. Both hooks and split shot were distributed in small cardboard boxes, and in readily available, small wooden, two part tubes, called 'barrels'. They were durable, allowing hundreds of openings before failing.

Left to be addressed was the link between fly line and hook, the 'catgut' leader which was not from a cat nor was it gut. Whole books have been written on its origin, but the simplest version is that the best of leader materials started out as silk of some kind, and were treated, thinned till quite transparent, and packed in short lengths of different diameters. The worst part of using this material was its tendency to coil like the kid's toy named "The Slinky", requiring a period of soaking between the felt pads of the aluminum leader box before it allowed itself to be knotted. That's just a little different from the 'redi-made' seven to twelve foot tapered leaders we use today.

Fly lines of the thirties, forties and fifties, differed greatly from the well engineered lines of today, and they also had to be cared for before they were fishable in the new season. Most of them were level lines with a thin fabric core surrounded by some type of oiled finish. You could encourage them to float only by liberally coating them with something called Muccillex (spelling?) and the line might need another coating before the morning's fishing was done. In the off season, all this line dressing had to be removed; the line was then checked for nicks and hung in an airy spot to await the beginning of the next season.

For those of my fishing friends and readers old enough to have enjoyed or experienced most of the above, I hope this brings a smile to your face. For all others, I'd wish that it serves as a short history lesson about the sport we treasure so highly.

FLY OF THE MONTH No 1

Crazy Charlie Bonefish Fly

As Tied by Pat Damico

FLY OF THE MONTH No 2

Bryon's Slab Crab

As Tied by Bryon Chamberlin

Materials:

Hook: Mustad C70S D size 4-8

Eyes: Beadchain

Thread: pink 6/0

Tail, underbody and wing flash: Rainbow Krystal Flash

Body: V-rib, or nymph rib, clear

Wing: Calf tail, white tan or pink

Instructions:

1. Place hook in vice, point side down
2. Start thread 1/8 inch behind eye making two lumps between which dumbbell eyes will be fastened with tight figure 8's
3. Advance thread to where hook begins to bend and tie in 2 long pieces of Krystal flash leaving 1/2 inch extending for the tail
4. Attach V-rib at bend with forward end up to eyes and wrap with thread forward tying thread off in front of dumbbell eyes. Coat eyes and body with Dave's flexament. Hold V-rib to rear and wrap underbody of Krystal Flash and tie off in front of eyes.
5. Wrap V-rib forward over underbody and tie off opposite where wing will go in front of eyes. Trim excess. Turn hook over with hook point on top.
6. Take excess strands of Krystal Flash and secure with thread where wing will go and trim 1/4 inch past bend of hook. Select calf tail hair for wing and fasten so that it extends 1/4 inch past bend of hook. Finish head with whip finish and drop of cement.

This basic pattern can be modified with larger eyes, different underbody color and other colors of V-rib. Sili-legs can also be added before finishing head. For bonefish, underdress the fly; for reds, a little more bulk is desirable. It is a good redfish, pompano, and sheepshead pattern in colors that match the bottom you are fishing.

Project Healing Waters by Jeff Janecek

If someone feels the same as me and can join us. once a year or every month, any visit would help. Call me at 352-588-3866 or E-mail 400exjl@ij.net

We are now meeting at building 68 on the James .A. Haley grounds. Meetings are from 4:00p.m to 5:00p.m on the same day as T.B.F.F.C. and on some weekends. Last month we had 3 volunteers and 6 veterans. There is no agenda; if a vet wants to talk about fishing, then that's what we do. If someone wants to cast then out we go. We are learning different tying methods, to overcome the same obstacles, the veterans face every day. This is the last treatment place before the veterans are released. It is very rewarding, knowing you shared the art of fly-fishing, to a very deserving person. Hope

Currently Ted, Leo, Nick and I, represent T.B.F.F.C. 🍷

Materials:

Hook: Size 4 to 2/0 Tiemco 800s or Similar.

Eyes: Medium Yellow Lead Dumbbell Eyes

Thread: Flat Waxed Nylon Chartreuse

Egg Sack: Orange Enrico Puglisi Fibers

Claws: Furnace Saddle Hackles

Body: Tan & Bronze Puglisi Fibers

Legs: 4 Silli Legs Brown w/ Orange Tips

Weed Guard: 16lb Mason Hard Mono

Tying Instructions:

1. Attach thread near the hook eye with the hook point in the down position in the vise, build a base about a 1/4 inch back from the hook eye; tie in the lead dumbbell eyes to the top of the hook. Secure and whip finish, cut thread.
2. Reattach thread at the bend of the hook and build up a small base.
3. Remove about 15 to 20 Orange EP Fibers from the bundle, cut to about 2 inches in length, fold over thread, tie in as if you were making a tail coming off the back of the hook, then trim the EP Fibers about 1/4 to 3/8 of an inch in length. This will puff out and form the egg sack.
4. Tie in 2 or 3 saddle hackle feathers on each side of the egg sack. Tips of the feathers should point to the rear of the fly and extend anywhere from 1 to 1.5 inches behind the fly. Splay the feathers as if you were tying a traditional tarpon streamer.
5. Turn fly hook point up in the vise.
6. Remove about 15 to 20 Tan EP Fibers from the bundle, fold in half and secure perpendicular to hook shank using a figure 8 motion similar to securing bead chain or dumbbell eyes to the hook. You want to be tying in the material on the side opposite of the dumbbell eyes (between the shank and the hook point) Repeat this step 4 more times alternating between tan and bronze color EP Fibers. Space out the sections equally making sure you have enough space to put in the last group of EP fibers just behind the lead dumbbell eyes. Should have 5 sections in total alternating in the following sequence: Tan, Bronze, Tan, Bronze, Tan.
7. After filling out the body segment of EP Fibers, trim using curved scissors into a wedge-like shape. Thinner near the dumbbell eyes and wider toward the end of the fly. This gives the fly lower hydrodynamic drag which allows the fly to fall faster to the bottom imitating a fleeing crab.
8. Tie in your favorite weed guard using 16lb Mason Hard Mono in the small space between the dumbbell eyes and the hook eye.
9. Whip finish a couple of times. Then apply head cement if desired.
10. Tie in your silli legs between each the alternating colored body segments using a square knot. This knot will cause the rubber legs to stick out at right angles to the hook shank. Trim the legs so they extend about an inch to an inch and a half beyond to outer edge of the body of the crab.

Cast the crab fly to tailing permit....

Fishing Report and Forecast

“What a great time to go fishing!”

AT THE SHAD OUTING: Steve Parker reports catching two shads and one bass. Both fish were caught using a clear sink tip line and a red and white fly with 5/32 eyes. Jeff Janecek also report from the shad outing that he caught 4 shads on a yellow clouser and an orange and pink clouser. He also caught a catfish and a speck using a clear intermediate sinking #6 line. Lance Pocock and Robert Fischer caught 4 shad, 2 bluegills, 2 clams and 12 snails while fighting the wind. Robert also said that he thought that Greg Peterson and Denise Bruner fishing with Byron Chamberlain's boat caught 9 shad. Our club had the most fly fishers present and caught the most fish.

From Rick Grasset for the first 7 day of February, trout and ladyfish were caught on clouser minnows using sink tip lines. The following week Chris Leu caught a Spanish Mackerel in deep grass flats using an ultra hair clouser. Later Mike Perez using a Grasset flats minnow fly hooked up with a very nice trout.

John Hand reports fishing with FFF Master Instructor Dusty Sprague was a delight to watch his pinpoint cast into the mangroves. They tried the flats to no avail, so they went up the river and caught largemouth bass on a real slow presentation. The next day he guided Jim Grimes and son with friend Don Grubb at the mouth of the Little Manatee River. A slow presentation was necessary to catch a few trout on a snook destroyer fly and bass assassin blurp shad. Be versatile and adjust your gear to the target species and there is still fun to be had by all.

Greg Peterson fished with Bryon and Rick Redd on the 14th and 15th of February. Reds were all over the Bay but are not cooperating when it comes to eating a fly. They had hundreds of looks but no eats on the 14th and of the 15th they managed to catch 1 of 3. Small tan sliders and small black toad were the seemed to be the ticket. Fishing has been hard the past several weeks.
